

(U) SINIO Strategic Intelligence Seminar: *Putin's Russia

FROM: [REDACTED]
Deputy Chief, Strategic Intelligence Issues
Run Date: 07/05/2003

(C) On Thursday, the SINIO Council and the National Cryptologic School are pleased to present the fourth in a series of Strategic Intelligence Issue Seminars for Summer 2003. "Putin's Russia" will be presented by the SINIO for Russia and Eurasia, [REDACTED], on July 10th from 1100-1300 in OPS1 2C086. SINIO for Strategic Programs and Arms Control, [REDACTED], and SINIO for Economics, [REDACTED], will also participate in this presentation. Advance registration is required; instructions are provided at the end of this article.

Course Overview:

(U) This session will take a look at Putin and what is happening in and with Russia. Is Russia on a new course or continuing the policies of the past? Have there been breakthroughs? What is Russia's relationship with the West, with the U.S.? Where is Russia headed in the world arena? Have there been foreign policy successes or do uncertainties lie ahead? In several different fora recently there have been a variety of perspectives presented and hopefully this talk will touch on these and stimulate the audience's thought processes. The Russian economy and its effects on Russian policies and Putin's deterrence dilemma will be addressed as well.

(U//FOUO) Please consult the SINIO Website ("go sinio") for information on future events in this series.
